

CANCER:

Dad, We Love You

By Wayne Visser

You hear the news, the dice is cast
Nature's cruel sentence passed
And what hope there was just seems to fade
The matter's closed, the choices made

And it's like the walls are caving in
Your heart it aches, your head it spins
You want to cry, you want to shout
You want to help, you've been shut out

"Where's the justice? Who's to blame?
Why does it have to end this way?
Let me speak, this is my cue;
Let me in, I love him too!"

And feeling hopeless, we stand by
We see your pain, yet your head's held high
And we know that in time you'll pull through
'Til then, we just wanted to say: We love you

Copyright 1993

